The War Today...

By DeWitt MacKenzie

THE BATTLE of the Belgian bulge continues to go so well for the Allies that, without over-reaching for our conclusions, we can say that the German offensive has been counter-offensive not only in that it has cost the Germans more than they have gained, but also in that it has proved to be a costly boomerang.

The latest high-ranking exponent of this idea is Lt. Gen. Omar Bradley, commander of the U. S. 12th army group in France, who says the Germans' drive may materially affect their "ability to resist." That is, their ability to prolong the war may have been reduced. The general warns, however, that this doesn't mean we can assume the Hitlerites are on the verge of collapse, since there's much fighting to come.

Bradley's opinion obviously is worth much, for he has been in the thick of the enemy assault and has just been decorated with the Bronze Star for his prompt action in countering the attack. Naturally he couldn't carry his cautious statement much further, but it would be interesting to know how soon he thinks the Germans may begin to get the full weight of the adverse reaction to their daring and dangerous venture. In short, when will the Allies be able to stage a knock-out offensive of their own.

Rundstedt is falling back from the western tip of that long, narrow bulge which is contracting about him. The way things look he will continue to withdraw until ultimately he again reaches his frontier defenses. Now this doesn't mean he is running away. He's fighting a fierce rear-guard action and dispatches from the front indicate he may try to make a determined stand at Houffalize, the key position in the heart of the salient.

ALLIES SCORE ADVANCES IN BELGIAN AREA

Yanks Seize Strategic Laroche; British Patrols Push Deeper

By JAMES M. LONG
PARIS, Jan. 11 — Allied troops captured strategic Laroche today and British patrols in a swift 10 mile advance through the collapsing western end of the Belgian bulge reached the Champion area a mile east of the north-south road between Laroche and St. Hubert. The road was cut without opposition.

The Germans quickened their skillful, orderly withdrawal in deep snow as the American First and Third armies drove in from north and south and the British Second army pursued through profuse mine fields from the west.

The main British force was four miles behind the patrols which penetrated the Champion area, almost through the difficult Prey forest. The town is 13 miles west of Houffalize, which the Germans may attempt to make the center of a new defensive front shielding the eastern half of the bulge.

Nine Above Zero

The Allies captured the strategic road center of Laroche (pop. 1928) on the north side of the salient at 9:05 a. m. Patrols entered the town, 14 miles northwest of Bastogne, yesterday and found it lightly held.

The cruelest enemy for both sides was the continuing blizzard, with temperatures nine above zero Fahrenheit.

Signs today were that the Nazi commander hoped to establish a new line 15 miles or so west of the German border between Vielsalm and Houffalize and the Bastogne sector.

A dozen or more towns fell. By latest reports, Von Rundstedt has pulled out of the toe of the Ardennes sock with all possible speed. But there was no sign of a stampede such as that in which

Ohio Boards Notified to Increase Inductions in February

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, Jan. 11.—February Ohio draft calls will be 40 to 50 per cent higher than January quotas.

The announcement was made last night by Lt. Col. Carl G. Wahl, chief of the manpower section of state Selective Service headquarters, who said boards had been notified to prepare for the increase.

He indicated there would be no increase in calls the remainder of this month.

In a memorandum Dec. 27, Goble told boards the urgent need for manpower had resulted in an increased call for February, but did not specify the amount of increase.

He said then that the stepped up February call was based on the projected need "in view of the best information available to the War and Navy departments."

The memorandum instructed boards to consider whether the registrant is contributing his full share to war production or whether he should take his place in the armed forces.

The next day boards were ordered to call up for induction deferred war workers who are "chronic absentees," and this memorandum was followed two days later by an order to review the farm deferments to men between 18 and 26.

Female Bank Bandit Jailed By FBI; 3 Accomplices Held

(By Associated Press)
TOLEDO, Jan. 11 — Mrs. Kitty Kelly of Toledo was held in the Lucas county jail today on a charge of stealing $100,225 of Home Owners Loan corporation bonds from the Bank of America at Los Angeles. Her alleged accomplice, John Alloysius O'Boyle, 50, was retained in Chicago on a like charge. Both pleaded innocent at arraignment. Mrs. Kelly's bond was set at $15,000 for hearing Jan. 17 while O'Boyle was held under $20,000 bond with the hearing continued until today.

Arraigned on charges of harboring Mrs. Kelly in a secret closet of a tavern apartment on the outskirts of Toledo were Jake Kelly, 66, James P. Kelly, Jr., 38, and Daniel Mouldin, 65, all of Toledo. All pleaded innocent and were held under $5,000 bond each.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Gerald P. Oppenlander reported Mrs. Kelly, who gave her age as 45, is the former wife of Jake Kelly and that James Kelly is their son. The elder Kelly operates the cafe while Mouldin is a waiter.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation said it also was investigating the couple's possible connection with a series of thefts last spring, totaling $6,760 in cash and war savings stamps, from First National Bank of Arizona, Phoenix; National Bank of Commerce, Seattle, Wash.; First National Bank of Portland, Ore., and Wells Fargo bank and Union Trust Co., San Francisco.

The FBI said O'Boyle has a criminal record dating back to 1916 and has been wanted in Mahoning county (Youngstown) O., since 1937 on a charge of murder. The bureau said Mrs. Kelly also has a criminal record.

Similar methods of operation were used in each theft, the FBI reported.

"Generally one individual telephoned a bank teller, identified himself as an officer in military service and asked the teller to look for some purportedly lost package of great importance. While the teller was away from his cage, a confederate stole cash, bonds, stamps or whatever might be available," the announcement stated.

Floding Is Reappointed On Park Commission

Dana Floding, druggist, who has been a member of the park commission for the past three years, was re-appointed today for a three year term by Mayor R. R. Johnson.

Floding was originally appointed by Mayor Johnson Jan. 1, 1941, to fill a vacancy. His term expired Dec. 31, 1944.

Mrs. Edith McKenzie of 442 S. Ellsworth ave., was notified today by the War department that her son, Pvt. Alvin James Cocos, missing in action since Oct. 4, is now a prisoner of war in Germany.

The former Dering Co. employee serving as a messenger with Co. K, 15th Infantry, has been overseas several months. He entered the army in February, 1943.

Keep Homes, Buildings At 68 Degrees, Is Byrnes' Appeal

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—The American people reached for red flannels and extra blankets today after James F. Byrnes issued an appeal that appeared likely to leave the country cold.

The war mobilization director last night that temperatures in all homes and public buildings be held at 68 degrees.

That was only one of the ways he proposed to save coal, meet an impending shortage of the fuel and avoid its rationing. He made compliance voluntary.

On the mandatory side, he ordered a "brownout." The war production board was instructed to issue orders banning all illuminated outdoor advertising and any ornamental or display lighting which uses coal-generated electricity.

Byrnes told the Office of Defense Transportation to eliminate special and excursion trains and extra passenger schedules to resorts. What ODT will do is obscure, for some time ago it froze passenger train schedules and forbade specials.

The curb on hot houses and offices will apply to those heated by gas and oil as well as by coal, since oil is rationed and much gas used for heating comes from coal.

"The secretary of the interior, who is also solid fuels administrator, estimates it will be necessary to reduce the overall consumption of bituminous coal by 25,000,000 tons during 1945," Byrnes said. "This is based on the assumption there is no stoppage of work during the year."

SEC. STIMSON CITES NEED OF MORE SOLDIERS

Below Par In Effectiveness: Most Men Under 30 Face Draft

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11 — War Secretary Stimson said today the Army "when measured in terms of effectiveness" is under strength.

He made the assertion at a news conference to explain the current call for an accelerated induction rate.

That call threatens to take some 200,000 to 250,000 young men out of war plants this spring to help meet demands from the armed forces for 900,000 men by July 1.

Col. Francis V. Keesling, Jr., testifying for the Selective Service system in support of national service legislation, told the house military committee today draft calls would be jumped to an average 132,000 men for each of the four months starting with March, January and February calls are for 112,000 men a month. Navy and Marines establishments among youths under 18 are expected to make up the 900,000 grand total.

Newsman asked Stimson if the Army is not already overstrength when its announced ceiling of 7,700,000 men is considered.

Stimson asserted that "measured in terms of effectiveness the army is under-strength, not over-strength."

He said there are approximately 450,000 wounded and sick in army hospitals now and that these men are ineffective in conducting a war. The rotation policy leaves some 85,000 men ineffective while they are in the process of moving in and out.

"The effective size of an army must be kept up to its ceiling," Stimson said.

Stimson said the Germans are not going to accept the inevitable end "without a fight to the finish."

He said, too, that the war with Japan is running ahead of schedule.

"If the needs of the armies at the fronts are to be met," Stimson said, "there seems to be no escape from calling into the armed services during this year, substantially all physically qualified men below 30 years of age from factory, farm and government. But when we do this the places of these young men will have to be taken by older men, women and younger men not acceptable for military service."

It became clear that the Army is about to dip into the next age tier, 26 through 29, in an industrial cleanout.

The Office of War Mobilization Director Byrnes was reported to be working out a revision of the list of essential industries to see which should be classed as "critical" and thus exempt from the new call for young fighting men.

Missing, Two Salem Soldiers Now Safe

Pfc. Ray Atkinson, who was reported missing in action in France Nov. 24, is now in a base hospital somewhere in France recovering from wounds suffered in action, it was learned today.

He wrote to friends here this week that he had been shot in the leg and that the bullet splintered the bone. The action in which he was hurt occurred Nov. 24. He expects to be hospitalized several months.

His address is: Pfc. Ray J. Atkinson, 35235192, Co. C, 313th Inf., APO 79, care postmaster, New York City.

Mrs. Edith McKenzie of 442 S. Ellsworth ave., was notified today by the War department that her son, Pvt. Alvin James Cocos, missing in action since Oct. 4, is now a prisoner of war in Germany.

Drive On Absenteeism EAST LIVERPOOL, Jan. 11—

Stressing a loss of 4,008 manhours in one day this week in seven major war plants in this district, Manager Spence Krigbaum of the East Liverpool office of the United States Employment Service, told the Lions club today that a drive will be launched at once to reduce industrial absenteeism as a means of solving the manpower shortage.

The draft board, in cases of habitually absent workers, has authority to clamp down, and steps can be taken to process the worker for induction, Krigbaum declared.

Major Clash With Japs Is Yet To Come

(By The Associated Press)
GEN. MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Luzon, Jan. 11.—Manila-bound American infantrymen stretched their beachhead over 22 miles of Lingayen gulf and drove inland from four key towns today toward impending major battles with Japanese reinforcements struggling north over bomb-out roads.

Only damaging opposition came at sea where night-attacking Japanese planes and torpedo boats hit several ships in a convoy bringing up 14th Corps reinforcements.

On land, the Yanks seized 20 towns and villages, captured Lingayen airfield and pushed their spearheads to a little more than 100 miles north of Manila. Nowhere was serious resistance reported.

Thursday's communique announced the doughboys overran the towns of San Fabian, Lingayen, Mangaldan and Dagupan in the first 24 hours and pressed inland for an average advance of four miles. Patrols were well ahead of this average penetration.

A field dispatch from Fred Hampson, Associated Press war correspondent, disclosed units of the 14th Army Corps pushing west along the coast from Lingayen, were within two miles of Port Sual.

The 71st fleet continued to pour troops, armament and supplies onto the beachhead while Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita pulled his scattered Japanese divisions together, as MacArthur did in 1941 in his converging withdrawal to Bataan peninsula.

A few-bomb carrying Japanese swan or drifted among American vessels under cover of darkness in futile human-torpedo attacks on the crowded ships.

Use New Air Field
Associated Press Correspondent Al Dopping reported the Japanese approached American vessels "in slow boats, or swimming with their heads hidden under boxes, and pushing before them 'hand-made' torpedoes, tiny bombs and even hand grenades." One hurried himself on the deck of a small craft and was blown to bits. Two others tried to blow up a destroyer by tying hand grenades to its fantail.

Unloading operations went ahead without interruption despite these attacks, ineffective night aerial sorties, and fifty-thousand tons of guns, tanks, munitions, engineering and aviation equipment was unloaded the first day, with four times that amount scheduled to be laid down by tonight.

American artillery-spotting planes began using the Lingayen airfield yesterday.

Only the prompt withdrawal of the Japanese garrison from Lingayen gulf saved it from early destruction, for in no place on the invasion did Yamashita have sufficient power to withstand the blow struck by sea, air and land power Jan. 9.

Correspondent Hampson reported troops from the Lingayen sector pressed about five miles inland, in addition to expanding their holding on the shore.

The seaward advance to within two miles of Port Sual would put the 14th corps across the mouth of the winding Agno river.)

Fleming To Address Town Hall Tonight

James Fleming, war correspondent and radio announcer, arrived in the city from New York this morning to speak at the Town hall meeting in the High school auditorium at 8 tonight.

His subject will be "Soviet Diplomacy and the Peace."

Fleming returned recently from a lengthy overseas assignment, during which he saw much action on the Russian front and interviewed many Russian leaders.

ASKS DIVORCE FROM LEETONIA CELEBRANT

Maria Davis of Leetonia thinks 344 spees in 10 years and "one month is too many," and if she proves her point her husband Robert J. Davis may capture the title of the "celebratingest" man of the year.

Charging him with "habitual drunkenness for more than three years, to-wit: Since their marriage in October, 1934, that the defendant had been drunk two or more times every month since their marriage and that the defendant has been intoxicated on all holidays since their marriage," his wife is seeking a divorce in the Columbiana county common pleas court at Lisbon.

A total of 242 "benders" is accounted for on the alleged semi-monthly basis. Disregarding rationing holidays and meatless Tuesday, the plaintiff is claiming her husband celebrated each of the year's 10 legal holidays over a 10-year period with Thanksgiving and Christmas of 1934 thrown in for good measure making 102 more "binges."

Female Bank Bandit Jailed By FBI; 3 Accomplices Held

(By Associated Press)
TOLEDO, Jan. 11.—Mrs. Kitty Kelly of Toledo was held in the Lucas county jail today on a charge of stealing $100,225 of Home Owners Loan corporation bonds from the Bank of America at Los Angeles.

Her alleged accomplice, John Alloysius O'Boyle, 50, was retained in Chicago on a like charge. Both pleaded innocent at arraignment. Mrs. Kelly's bond was set at $15,000 for hearing Jan. 17 while O'Boyle was held under $20,000 bond with the hearing continued until today.

Arraigned on charges of harboring Mrs. Kelly in a secret closet of a tavern apartment on the outskirts of Toledo were Jake Kelly, 66, James P. Kelly, Jr., 36, and Daniel Mouldin, 65, all of Toledo. All pleaded innocent and were held under $5,000 bond each.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Gerald P. Oppenlander reported Mrs. Kelly, who gave her age as 45, is the former wife of Jake Kelly and that Jake Kelly is their son. The elder Kelly operates the cafe while Mouldin is a waiter.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation said it also was investigating the couple's possible connection with a series of thefts last spring, totaling $6,760 in cash and war savings stamps, from First National Bank of Arizona, Phoenix; National Bank of Commerce, Seattle, Wash.; First National bank of Portland, Ore., and Wells Fargo bank and Union Trust Co., San Francisco.

The FBI said O'Boyle has a criminal record dating back to 1916 and has been wanted in Mahoning county (Youngstown) O. since 1937 on a charge of murder. The bureau said Mrs. Kelly also has a criminal record.

Similar methods of operation were used in each theft, the FBI reported.

"Generally one individual telephoned a bank teller, identified himself as an officer in military service and asked the teller to look for some purportedly lost package of great importance. While the teller was away from his cage, a confederate stole cash, bonds, stamps or whatever might be available," the announcement stated.

Dana Flooding, druggist, who has been a member of the park commission for the past three years, was re-appointed today for a three year term by Mayor R. R. Johnson.

Flooding was originally appointed by Mayor Johnson Jan. 1, 1941, to fill a vacancy. His term expired Dec. 31, 1944.

Keep Homes, Buildings At 68 Degrees, Is Byrnes' Appeal

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—The American people reached for red flannels and extra blankets today after James F. Byrnes issued an appeal that appeared likely to leave the country cold.

The war mobilization director last night that temperatures in all homes and public buildings be held at 68 degrees.

That was only one of the ways he proposed to save coal, meet an impending shortage of the fuel and avoid its rationing. He made compliance voluntary.

On the mandatory side, he ordered a "brownout." The war production board was instructed to issue orders banning all illuminated outdoor advertising and any ornamental or display lighting which uses coal-generated electricity.

Byrnes told the Office of Defense Transportation to eliminate special and excursion trains and extra passenger schedules to resorts. What ODT will do is obscure, for some time ago it froze passenger train schedules and forbade specials.

The curb on hot houses and offices will apply to those heated by gas and oil as well as by coal, since oil is rationed and much gas used for heating comes from coal.

"The secretary of the interior, who is also solid fuels administrator, estimates it will be necessary to reduce the overall consumption of bituminous coal by 25,000,000 tons during 1945," Byrnes said. "This is based on the assumption there is no stoppage of work during the year."

The war mobilization director cited these factors in the tight coal situation:

Bituminous coal equivalents for 1945 are estimated at 1,000,000,000 tons, production 1,000,000,000 tons. Consumption in 1944 and stockpile of 1944 and 1945 are 1,000,000,000 tons. Consumption in 1943 and 1944 is 1,000,000,000 tons.

Byrnes said "We will be down to 40,000,000 tons by April 1, and that is only a 22-day supply."

A few hours before Byrnes acted for the holding of temperatures to 70 degrees or lower in all large buildings east of the Mississippi river which are heated by soft coal. Unless this is done, he said, there will be more rigid controls on fuel deliveries.

SEC. STIMSON CITES NEED OF MORE SOLDIERS

Below Par In Effectiveness; Most Men Under 30 Face Draft

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—War Secretary Stimson said today the Army "when measured in terms of effectiveness" is under strength.

He made the assertion at a news conference to explain the current call for an accelerated induction rate.

That call threatens to take some 200,000 to 250,000 young men out of war plants this spring to help meet demands from the armed forces for 900,000 men by July 1.

Col. Francis V. Keessling, Jr., testifying for the Selective Service system in support of national service legislation, told the house military committee today draft calls would be jumped to an average 132,000 men for each of the four months starting with March January and February calls are for 112,000 men a month. Navy and Marines establishments among youths under 18 are expected to make up the 900,000 grand total.

Newsmen asked Stimson if the Army is not already overstrength when its announced ceiling of 7,700,000 men is considered.

Stimson asserted that "measured in terms of effectiveness the army is under-strength, not over-strength."

He said there are approximately 450,000 wounded and sick in army hospitals now and that these men are ineffective in conducting a war. The rotation policy leaves some 85,000 men ineffective while they are in the process of moving in and out, he added.

"The effective size of an army must be kept up to its ceiling," Stimson said.

Stimson said the Germans are not going to accept the inevitable end "without a fight to the finish."

He said, too, that the war with Japan is running ahead of schedule.

"If the needs of the armies at the fronts are to be met," Stimson said, "there seems to be no escape from calling into the armed services during this year, substantially all physically qualified men below 30 years of age from factory, farm and government. But when we do this the places of these young men will have to be taken by older men, women and younger men not acceptable for military service."

It became clear that the Army is about to dip into the next age group, 26 through 29, in an industrial cleanout.

The Office of War Mobilization Director Byrnes was reported to be working out a revision of the list of essential industries to see which should be classed as "critical" and thus exempt from the new call for young fighting men.

Missing, Two Salem Soldiers Now Safe

Pfc. Ray Atkinson, who was reported missing in action in France Nov. 24, is now in a base hospital somewhere in France recovering from wounds suffered in action, it was learned today.

He wrote to friends here this week that he had been shot in the leg and that the bullet splintered the bone. The action in which he was hurt occurred Nov. 24. He expects to be hospitalized several months.

His address is: Pfc. Ray J. Atkinson, 35239182, Co. K, 313th Inf., APO 79, care postmaster, New York City.

Drive On Absenteeism

EAST LIVERPOOL, Jan. 11.—Stressing a loss of 4,008 man-hours in one day this week in seven major war plants in this district, Manager Spence Krigbaum of the East Liverpool office of the United States Employment Service, told the Lions club today that a drive will be launched at once to reduce industrial absenteeism as a means of solving the manpower shortage.

The draft board, in cases of habitually absent workers, has authority to clamp down, and steps can be taken to process the worker for induction, Krigbaum declared.

Major Clash With Japs Is Yet To Come

(By The Associated Press)

GEN. MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Luzon, Jan. 11.—Manila-bound American infantrymen stretched their beachhead over 22 miles of Lingayen gulf and drove inland from four key towns today toward impending major battles with Japanese reinforcements struggling north over bomb-cut roads.

Only damaging opposition came at sea where night-attacking Japanese planes and torpedo boats hit several ships in a convoy bringing up 14th Corps reinforcements.

On land, the Yanks seized 20 towns and villages, captured Lingayen airfield and pushed their spearheads to a little more than 100 miles north of Manila. Nowhere was serious resistance reported.

Thursday's communique announced the doughboys overran the towns of San Fabian, Lingayen, Mangaldan and Dagupan in the first 24 hours and pressed inland for an average advance of four miles. Patrols were well ahead of this average penetration.

A field dispatch from Fred Hampton, Associated Press war correspondent, disclosed units of the 34th Army Corps pushing west along the coast from Lingayen, were within two miles of Port Saul.

The first fleet continued to pour troops, armament and supplies onto the beachhead while Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita pulled his scattered Japanese divisions together, as MacArthur did in 1941 in his converging withdrawal to Bataan peninsula.

A few-bomb carrying Japanese swan or drifted among Japanese vessels under cover of darkness in futile human-torpedo attacks on the crowded ships.

Use New Air Field

Associated Press Correspondent Al Dopping reported the Japanese approached American vessels "in slow boats, or swimming with their heads hidden under boxes, and pushing before them 'hand-made' torpedoes, tiny bombs and even hand grenades." One hurled himself on the deck of a small craft and was blown to bits. Two others tried to blow up a destroyer by tying hand grenades to its fantail.

Unloading operations went ahead without interruption despite these attacks, ineffective night aerial sorties, and fifty-thousand tons of guns, tanks, munitions, engineering and aviation equipment was unloaded since Oct. 1, 1944. A daughter, Wilma, 11, also survives.

A former Ravenna arsenal employee, Tech. Wheaton had been overseas since Oct. 1, 1944. A daughter, Wilma, 11, also survives.

PLEGGE, WOUNDED FOUR TIMES, NOW ON "MISSING" LIST

Wounded twice while serving in Italy and twice in France, Staff Sgt. Willard Pledge, serving with the 15th Infantry in France, is now reported missing in action, the War department today informed his father, Joseph Pledge, 418 Franklin st.

Holder of the Purple Heart and the Silver Star award for gallantry in action, he has been missing since Dec. 19. He has been in the service three years and went overseas nearly a year ago, after receiving training at Fort Benning, Ga.

Sgt. Pledge was wounded Feb. 29, 1944, at the Anzio beachhead and on May 26 in the fighting near Rome. On Sept. 10 he suffered a shoulder wound in France and again on Oct. 22 he was hurt, still while serving in France.

His regiment took part in the action at Anzio, in the fighting for Rome and later invaded southern France. For a time he was in Germany, according to letters he wrote home, but most of his service recently had been in France.

The infantry man was employed by the National Furniture Co. before entering the army. He has a brother, Staff Sgt. Joseph Pledge, now in Germany and another brother, Anthony, who left yesterday for Camp Atterbury, Ind.

Wounded In Germany

NEW SPRINGFIELD, Jan. 11.—Mr. and Mrs. Park Lipp received word that their son, Staff Sgt. Donald C. Lipp, was seriously wounded in Germany on Dec. 16, and is now hospitalized.

Sgt. Lipp entered the service Dec. 3, 1942, and was sent overseas in September, 1944. He was in England and France before going to Germany. He is with the 99th division.

Half A Trillion Onward

Presentation of the national budget at the beginning of a congressional session used to be an arithmetic lesson in multiple ciphers, leading to a lot of glum moralizing and viewing with alarm. It was that way as recently as the early days of the Roosevelt administration.

The Democratic platform of 1932, on which Mr. Roosevelt won his first election, pledged "maintenance of the national credit by a federal budget annually balanced on the basis of accurate executive estimates within revenues raised by a system of taxation levied on the principle of ability to pay."

The New Deal, then the war emergency, established the idea that the United States could not be expected to maintain itself out of the income it could produce from taxes. The credo of deficit financing, resisted at first, gradually became acceptable. It was not even mentioned in the national campaign of 1944; war had confirmed what already had been practiced in peacetime—that the United States would have to borrow continuously against the future to survive in the present.

Another idea has been established too—that in order to pay the carrying charges on the debt thus incurred the government must step up the level of economic activity when the war boom is over. In other words, it is no longer humanitarianism that prompts government to be concerned about post-war unemployment but collapse of national credit. This is perhaps the greatest single economic fact of our times, though as yet it is not fully understood.

Highlights of the national financial situation as reported by President Roosevelt Tuesday are:

That starting next July 1, the per capita cost of federal government will be about $600—$2,400 annually for a family of four.

That about half the cost will be paid from taxes, with the rest added to the national debt.

That it will cost $4,500,000,000 just to pay interest on the debt, which is expected to reach $251,800,000,000 by next July 1 and $292,300,000,000 a year later.

That the per capita share of the debt will go above $2,000 after next July 1, or $8,000 for a family of four. It is ability to pay the interest on this debt and the theoretical ability to pay off the debt itself eventually that is the basis of public credit.

That the cost of the war from July 1, 1940, to June 30, 1945, is expected to reach $450,000,000,000, half a trillion dollars.

That ultimately, with the war over, the annual cost of the federal government may be stabilized in the neighborhood of $25,000,000,000, compared with $13,000,000,000, the portion of the 1945 budget chargeable to strictly government cost, as distinguished from war costs.

All figures used in estimates are subject to change, of course, but in the aggregate what they signify is that the federal government in the future, as in the past—under the deficit financing which the New Deal inherited in 1933 as part of the depression legacy and later rationalized as a prime public policy—will continue to spend what it says is needed, regardless of what is obtainable from income.

Cooperation Could Do It

William Green's opinion that talk about drafting labor in the United States is "unnecessary and hysterical" will be given serious attention in Washington. As president of AFL, Mr. Green is spokesman for one of the compact minorities which will be sure to make its influence felt if the issue of a national service act comes to a showdown.

Mr. Green believes the total number of workers needed to relieve the acute labor shortage—about 300,000—could be supplied without legislation "if all of us would get together." That is a conditional clause packed with dynamite. It means that public officials would have to take the public completely into their confidence. It means that political maneuvering in public circles and within such semi-public circles as the organized labor movement would have to be suspended for the duration. It means that insofar as the government of the United States is concerned there would be an end to the drift toward regimentation as the apparent solution to all problems and a revival of faith in cooperation. It means that cooperation would have to be given a green light in relations between labor and management.

The alternative is a national service act. No one really wants that, except those who have abandoned faith in cooperative, though it may be sold ultimately as the final recourse in the continued absence of cooperation. It would not assure success, of course, and might easily do more harm than good as a result of the confusion that would attend so radical an innovation, but these risks may have to be taken unless Mr. Green's ideal of cooperation is realized without delay.

The Stars Say

For Friday, January 12

AN UNUSUALLY active, lively and probably pleasant state of affairs is the presage based on propitious aspects of major planets. A rather unexpected or exceptional opportunity may arise, promising success, happiness and enhanced prestige and popularity both in business and private affiliations. There might be some public, group or fraternal recognition. While a brilliant idea or intuitive lead might stimulate the energies and ambitions, yet it would be wise to give serious thought or deep study to such an urge, lest haste or erratic impulses prove unprofitable or cause surprising complications. Personal influence may prove of value, even charm or social prestige.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for an out-of-the-ordinary opportunity for demonstrating the talents, skill or inventive genius or originality and while these promise dramatic denouement or spectacular success and approbation from those in authority or public office, yet such intuition, illumination or vision should be subjected to sound analysis and sustained reflection for best results and future complications. There may be unusual pleasure in such achievement with happy reactions on the romantic, social and affectional relations.

A child born on this day may be endowed with exceptional talents along advanced, creative or scientific lines, winning success, public acclaim and joy in its social, domestic and romantic affiliations.

New Concept Of Monopoly

By James Thrasher

In October, 1941, the world's longest law suit ended when a United States District Court dismissed the government's anti-trust action against the Aluminum Co. of America. The court held that Alcoa was the (then) only aluminum producer in the field because of efficiency, and not because it had monopolized the naturally accessible ingredients of bauxite and water power.

Now the government has appealed the decision to a special federal court and has asked that the company be dissolved. Solicitor General Charles Fahy presented the government's argument. And in speaking of the "innumerable" business transactions growing out of Alcoa's development, he said:

"Assuming that each were innocent if treated in isolation... (the) end result thus achieved and maintained for this long period of time in a basic industry, namely 100 per cent monopoly, in and of itself, all else beside, brings Alcoa into conflict with Section 2 of the Sherman Act (which defines monopoly as a misdemeanor and sets forth its maximum penalty)."

Thus it seems that the government now considers that though a business structure may be guilty of no overt acts and is the sum of equally innocent parts, it becomes punishable under law if only the total business structure is large enough and exclusive enough.

One might wonder whether, if mere size and efficiency in private industry are to be penalized, the government's ultimate goal is a great many small private businesses and a good many large and exclusive TVAs.

Deflated Hero

We don't know whether young Harvard Hodgkins got carried away by the drama of his part in helping the FBI catch those two Nazi spies in Maine. But it does seem that the G-men gave Harvard an unnecessarily brusque brush-off in contradicting his claims.

The FBI has done a magnificent job in this war. But, as Director J. Edgar Hoover himself has said, his men do need the public's help in apprehending spies and saboteurs. And such a stern refutation of a youngster's claim—refutation that sounded like ingratitude—seems scarcely the way to acknowledge past help and encourage future assistance.

Just Childish

Smoking, says the head psychiatrist at New York's Bellevue hospital, is in the same class as thumb-sucking, and a baby's pacifier will accomplish the same purpose as a cigaret.

We hesitate to predict what effect this shocking revelation will have on American life. But it seems logical that once the cigaret shortage eases up, the juvenile smoker will feel free to come out from behind the barn and join the rest of the family in their infantile enjoyment of the weed.

There's no explaining the heaviest snowfall in years—but we all get the drift.

Sometimes a nightmare is just a dream with her hair in curls.

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

The "Sore Throat" Discussed

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.
"SORE THROAT" is a household diagnosis which covers a multitude of things.

All common colds are divided into three parts—nose, throat and bronchi. Sometimes just one is involved.

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Involved at a time. Sometimes everything is involved—there is running from the nose, sore throat and difficult swallowing and tightness in the chest and coughing. Sometimes the whole thing starts in the nose, works down to the throat, and lands in the chest.

Most often it starts in the throat and works both directions—that is one kind of sore throat. If you look in such a throat you see a red palate with little yellowish, glistening spots scattered over it—follicular pharyngitis.

Acute Tonsillitis
Another kind of sore throat is acute tonsillitis. That is a strictly throat affair—and a good thing too because if the same amount of trouble as is kicked up in the throat by a pair of acute tonsils were to spread to the nose and chest it would be early Christian torture.

Then, whenever a sore throat turns up, especially if the prostration is out of proportion to the fever or soreness, one has to think of diphtheria and make an immediate throat culture.

The strep throat is somewhere in between all of these. It may have a membrane on the pharynx that looks like diphtheria, it may involve the tonsils almost exclusively. It is certainly prostrating and makes you good and sick.

Varieties of "Strep"
The streptococcus is a fine, round little germ that grows in the form of chains. There are many varieties of it—one causes erysipelas, and one scarlet fever. Other varieties are responsible for puerperal fever and forms acute heart disease. The kind you have in the pharynx in a "strep sore throat" may be any of these, so it is best not to treat it with contempt. Select rather one of the sulfa drugs. It can be identified and differentiated from diphtheria by a throat culture.

We are surrounded by streptococci all the time and carry some around in our mouth cavities and noses. But we are used to them and have developed immunity to them and they give us no bother. It is when we get an overwhelming dose of a strange variety that we are in danger of coming down with strep sore throat.

Many epidemics have been traced to infected milk, the milk being just loaded with colonies of streptococci which comes maybe from some food handler—dairy man, milk man, waitress, cook. You may get on a street car or a bus, or go to a movie and sit next to someone who is just coming down with a fine case of it and breathing out clouds of streptococci in all directions. They are very contagious and tend to go in epidemics.

Develop Immunity
I don't want to scare anybody by all this. There is really no way to avoid it. Certainly the worst thing is to withdraw yourself from life.

and refuse to go on buses or to the movies. The best thing is to mingle freely with everybody and develop immunity to all varieties of strep. Take me who have for more years than I want to tell jammed into crowds and movie houses from Oregon to Russia. I don't suppose it would be possible to give me a sore strep sore throat. Knock on wood.

But the serious dangers that used to accompany a strep sore throat are pushed into the background now that we have the sulfa drugs to treat such conditions with. These chemicals are especially deadly to streptococci. In fact in the first period of their use they were supposed to be effective only against streptococci. Now we have found they are useful against other infections. Given in adequate dosage they knock out a strep sore throat and stop the dangers of complications in about 48 hours. There are two now—sulfadiazine and sulfamerazine—that are highly effective against streptococci and produce almost no disagreeable toxic symptoms in the patient.

Before the Christian era, women found milk valuable in preserving their complexions.

Half A Trillion Onward

Presentation of the national budget at the beginning of a congressional session used to be an arithmetic lesson in multiple ciphers, leading to a bit of gum chewing and viewing with alarm. It was that way as recently as the early days of the Roosevelt administration.

The Democratic platform of 1932, on which Mr. Roosevelt won his first election, pledged "maintenance of the national credit by a federal budget annually balanced on the basis of accurate executive estimates within revenues raised by a system of taxation levied on the principle of ability to pay."

The New Deal, then the war emergency, established the idea that the United States could not be expected to maintain itself out of the income it could produce from taxes. The credo of deficit financing, resisted at first, gradually became acceptable. It was not even mentioned in the national campaign of 1944; war had confirmed what already had been practiced in peacetime—that the United States would have to borrow continuously against the future to survive in the present.

Another idea has been established too—that in order to pay the carrying charges on the debt thus incurred the government must step up the level of economic activity when the war boom is over. In other words, it is no longer humanitarianism that prompts government to be concerned about post-war unemployment but collapse of national credit. This is perhaps the greatest single economic fact of our times, though as yet it is not fully understood.

Highlights of the national financial situation as reported by President Roosevelt Tuesday are:

That starting next July 1, the per capita cost of federal government will be about $600—$2,400 annually for a family of four.

That about half the cost will be paid from taxes, with the rest added to the national debt.

That it will cost $4,500,000,000 just to pay interest on the debt, which is expected to reach $251,800,000,000 by next July 1, and $292,300,000,000 a year later.

That the per capita share of the debt will go above $2,000 after next July 1, or $8,000 for a family of four. It is ability to pay the interest on this debt and the theoretical ability to pay off the debt itself eventually that is the basis of public credit.

That the cost of the war from July 1, 1940, to June 30, 1945, is expected to reach $450,000,000,000, half a trillion dollars.

That ultimately, with the war over, the annual cost of the federal government may be stabilized in the neighborhood of $25,000,000,000, compared with $13,000,000,000, the portion of the 1945 budget chargeable to strictly government cost, as distinguished from war costs.

All figures used in estimates are subject to change, of course, but in the aggregate what they signify is that the federal government in the future, as in the past—under the deficit financing which the New Deal inherited in 1933 as part of the depression legacy and later rationalized as a prime public policy—will continue to spend what it says is needed, regardless of what is obtainable from income.

Cooperation Could Do It

William Green's opinion that talk about drafting labor in the United States is "unnecessary and hysterical" will be given serious attention in Washington. As president of AFL, Mr. Green is spokesman for one of the compact minorities which will be sure to make its influence felt if the issue of a national service act comes to a showdown.

Mr. Green believes the total number of workers needed to relieve the acute labor shortage—about 300,000—could be supplied without legislation "if all of us would get together." That is a conditional clause packed with dynamite. It means that public officials would have to take the public completely into their confidence. It means that political maneuvering in public circles and within such semi-public circles as the organized labor movement would have to be suspended for the duration. It means that insofar as the government of the United States is concerned there would be an end to the drift toward regimentation as the apparent solution to all problems and a revival of faith in cooperation. It means that cooperation would have to be given a green light in relations between labor and management.

The alternative is a national service act. No one really wants that, except those who have abandoned faith in cooperative, though it may be sold ultimately as the final recourse in the continued absence of cooperation. It would not assure success, of course, and might easily do more harm than good as a result of the confusion that would attend so radical an innovation, but these risks may have to be taken unless Mr. Green's ideal of cooperation is realized without delay.

The Stars Say

For Friday, January 12

AN UNUSUALLY active, lively and possibly pleasant state of affairs is the presage based on propitious aspects of major planets. A rather unexpected or exceptional opportunity may arise, promising success, happiness and enhanced prestige and popularity both in business and private affiliations. There might be some public, group or fraternal recognition. While a brilliant idea or intuitive lead might stimulate the energies and ambitions, yet it would be wise to give serious thought or deep study to such an urge. Let haste or erratic impulses prove unprofitable or cause surprising complications. Personal influence may prove of value, even charm or social prestige.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for an out-of-the-ordinary opportunity for demonstrating the talents, skill or inventive genius or originality and while these promise dramatic denouement or spectacular success and approbation from those in authority or public office, yet such intuition, illumination or vision should be subjected to sound analysis and sustained reflection for best results and future complications. There may be unusual pleasure in such achievement with happy reactions on the romantic, social and affectional relations.

A child born on this day may be endowed with exceptional talents along advanced, creative or scientific lines, winning success, public acclaim and joy in its social, domestic and romantic affiliations.

New Concept Of Monopoly

By James Thrasher

In October, 1941, the world's longest law suit ended when a United States District Court dismissed the government's anti-trust action against the Aluminum Co. of America. The court held that Alcoa was the (then) only aluminum producer in the field because of efficiency, and not because it had monopolized the naturally accessible ingredients of bauxite and water power.

Now the government has appealed the decision to a special federal court and has asked that the company be dissolved. Solicitor General Charles Fahy presented the government's argument. And in speaking of the "innumerable" business transactions growing out of Alcoa's development, he said:

"Assuming that each were innocent if treated in isolation... (the) end result thus achieved and maintained for this long period of time in a basic industry, namely 100 per cent monopoly, in and of itself, all else beside, brings Alcoa into conflict with Section 2 of the Sherman Act (which defines monopoly as a misdemeanor and sets forth its maximum penalty)."

Thus it seems that the government now considers that though a business structure may be guilty of no overt acts and is the sum of equally innocent parts, it becomes punishable under law if only the total business structure is large enough and exclusive enough.

One might wonder whether, if mere size and efficiency in private industry are to be penalized, the government's ultimate goal is a great many small private businesses and a good many large and exclusive TVAs.

Deflated Hero

We don't know whether young Harvard Hodgkins got carried away by the drama of his part in helping the FBI catch those two Nazi spies in Maine. But it does seem that the G-men gave Harvard an unnecessarily brusque brush-off in contradicting his claims.

The FBI has done a magnificent job in this war. But, as Director J. Edgar Hoover himself has said, his men do need the public's help in apprehending spies and saboteurs. And such a stern refutation of a youngster's claim—refutation that sounded like ingratitude—seems scarcely the way to acknowledge past help and encourage future assistance.

Just Childish

Smoking, says the head psychiatrist at New York's Bellevue hospital, is in the same class as thumb-sucking, and a baby's pacifier will accomplish the same purpose as a cigarette.

We hesitate to predict what effect this shocking revelation will have on American life. But it seems logical that once the cigarette shortage eases up the juvenile smoker will feel free to come out from behind the barn and join the rest of the family in their infantile enjoyment of the weed.

There's no explaining the heaviest snowfall in years—but we all get the drift.

Sometimes a nightmare is just a dream with her hair in curlers.

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

The "Sore Throat" Discussed

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

"SORE THROAT" is a household diagnosis which covers a multitude of things.

All common colds are divided into three parts—nose, throat and bronchi. Sometimes just one is involved.

Dr. Clendingen will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Involved at a time. Sometimes everything is involved—there is running from the nose, sore throat and difficult swallowing and tightness in the chest and coughing. Sometimes the whole thing starts in the nose, works down to the throat, and lands in the chest.

Most often, it starts in the throat and works both directions—that is one kind of sore throat. If you look in such a throat you see a red palate with little yellowish, glistening spots scattered over it—follicular pharyngitis.

Acute Tonsillitis. Another kind of sore throat is acute tonsillitis. That is a strictly throat affair—and a good thing too because if the same amount of trouble as is kicked up in the throat by a pair of acute tonsils were to spread to the nose and chest it would be early Christian torture.

Then, whenever a sore throat turns up, especially if the prostration is out of proportion to the fever or soreness, one has to think of diphtheria and make an immediate throat culture.

The strep throat is somewhere in between all of these. It may have a membrane on the pharynx that looks like diphtheria, it may involve the tonsils almost exclusively. It is certainly prostrating and makes you good and sick.

Varieties of "Strep" The streptococcus is a fine, round little germ that grows in the form of chains. There are many varieties of it—one causes erysipelas, and one causes fever. Other varieties are responsible for puerperal fever and forms acute heart disease. The kind you have in the pharynx in a "strep sore throat" may be any of these, so it is best not to treat it with contempt. Select rather one of the sulfa drugs. It can be identified and differentiated from diphtheria by a throat culture.

We are surrounded by streptococci all the time and carry some around in our mouth cavities and noses. But we are used to them and have developed immunity to them and they give us no bother. It is when we get an overwhelming dose of a strange variety that we are in danger of coming down with strep sore throat.

Many epidemics have been traced to infected milk, the milk being just loaded with colonies of streptococci which comes maybe from some food handler—dairy man, milk man, waitress, cook. You may get on a street car or a bus, or go to a movie and sit next to someone who is just coming down with a fine case of it and breathing out germs of streptococci in all directions. They are very contagious and tend to go in epidemics.

I don't want to scare anybody by all this. There is really no way to avoid it. Certainly the worst thing is to withdraw yourself from life.

and refuse to go on buses or to the movies. The best thing is to mingle freely with everybody and develop immunity to all varieties of strep. Take me who have for more years than I want to tell jammed into crowds and movie houses from Oregon to Russia. I don't suppose it would be possible to give me a sore strep sore throat. Knock on wood.

But the serious dangers that used to accompany a strep sore throat are pushed into the background now that we have the sulfa drugs to treat such conditions with. These chemicals are especially deadly to streptococci. In fact in the first period of their use they were supposed to be effective only against streptococci. Now we have found they are useful against other infections. Given in adequate dosage they knock out a strep sore throat and stop the dangers of complications in about 48 hours. There are two now—sulfadiazine and sulfamerazine—that are highly effective against streptococci and produce almost no disagreeable toxic symptoms in the patient.

Before the Christian era, women found milk valuable in preserving their complexions.

ROMANTIC MASQUERADE

by MARIE BLIZARD

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

When she came to Washington, Daphne made it clear that she came only for professional reasons, that seeing Alan was a pleasure, but that her feelings hadn't changed. This Alan had met with his usual aplomb, assuring her that he was justified, and had proceeded to introduce her to his many friends.

Alan gave up then. If Alan was content to escort her about, and his attentions on her, there was no objection. She needed Alan. He was necessary to her new way of living. She went to theatres, receptions and cocktail parties and to dinner parties and state affairs. She was popular and her invitations were many. She dressed smartly, played sound bridge, danced willingly with elderly gentlemen, and gave an occasional small luncheon.

Celine had arranged to send her a hundred a month, and told her that she was piling up profits in yet unpaid commissions.

She was doing extremely well for a girl who was working for no other reason than to forget a man who didn't want her. She was doing rather well, too, at forgetting him, Daphne thought. It was only occasionally that his heart leaped into her mouth when she saw a dark head above the Medical Corps in uniform.

She was a little proud that she had written her farewell note to Alan, she wasn't even looking for an answer. Daphne got dressed finally, that Friday afternoon, in one of her black dresses and a cartwheel hat made her telephone calls, inspected the paint job, drank tea with the attaché's mother, had a glass of sherry at the congress man's house, ran into a cocktail party at the senator's, and got home late and so tired, that she fell asleep while trying to answer a long-overdue letter to Buff, her most faithful correspondent.

Saturday morning Daphne woke, though still tired, and was all packed—her things and Alan's—when Alan arrived. "No sports gear, please," she said. "Spare me activity. I want to find a cool corner and take a nap. Do anything you like, m'love. Alan's only asked a few people. I'll be unexciting, but comfortable, like me."

"You are exciting," she smiled, "and you're comfortable, too." Alan enlarged upon the theme for some miles, and then broke off as the car entered a long drive leading to a huge white house with tall columns and spreading wings.

"This is it, Pemberton Hall. Dad gave it to Jane for a wedding present when she married Jock Pemberton. Like it?"

"Like it? It's magnificent!" The house stood on the crown of the hill, surrounded with rolling lawns of emerald velvet. Rhododendrons, azalea and delphinium were massed in a riot of gorgeous color along the border of the drive, and tall, aged trees with lovely green leaves, shaded both house and sun-swept grounds.

Daphne fell immediately in love with it, and with the interior of the house.

house with its air of elegance and spacious dignity, and with Jane and her ruddy-faced husband. And with Jane's fat little girls who took Alan off to their quarters. And with the cocker spaniels, and the luncheon served on the river-fronting terrace.

The delectable food, the sky above them, the sun sparkling on the swimming pool, the flowers—and Alan golden brown, with his sun-bleached hair above the white of his uniform—all these merged into one delightful haze.

Later that afternoon, when Daphne, in bathing attire, sat on the edge of the pool, watching the children splashing in the water, she thought—as if it were a revelation: This is the kind of life I dreamed about.

It was hers for two days—or a lifetime, if she wanted it. "It's been the loveliest two days I've ever had," she told Alan on Sunday night when they were looking at the stars from the terrace.

"It's been quiet. A little riding, a little swimming, a little backgammon. Very simple. But you have enjoyed it?"

"Love it!" Daphne exclaimed, smiling a little as she thought how she'd been enjoying "simplicity" which was the very essence of elegance.

"Too bad you have to go back tomorrow."

"Jane's been having a picnic. Kit and Bets have been teaching him to ride the pony. I think we've got a triangle there. Of course he's a little too young to make a choice between the girls, but—"

"Alan thinks he's gone to heaven," she said dreamily. "How about you?"

"It is heavenly," she said truthfully. "I feel a little bit that way myself."

Alan was mixing a drink for himself, and he spoke without turning. "Room enough for me in this heaven?"

"Why, you're part of it, Alan!" He brought a drink to her and proposed a toast: "To Pemberton Hall!"

"You mean 'Pemberton' Hall, don't you?"

"No," he said, shaking his head. "I was thinking of our house. Of course we could call it anything you like. Dew Drop Inn, if you wish."

Daphne sipped her drink. "Don't tempt me," she said lightly. "It could be as much like this as you wanted it. We'd have a pool, of course, and a pony for Alan and—our kids."

She could see his eyes in the moonlight, serious, intent upon her.

Many Never Suspect Cause Of Backaches

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

but she couldn't speak. A pony for Alan and "our kids."

Alan was speaking again: "Nobody knows what we'll have when the war is over, but I think I could support us for life in this style, darling."

"I want it, Alan," she said. "I want this kind of a life. I like other kinds of life, too. I like my little house in New England, and the simple life I led there. I don't know if I'll ever go back to it. Perhaps the reason I like this so much is because it's so different from . . . from what I left and I . . . I can't be sure."

"Let me be sure for you."

"How could you, Alan?"

"I'd make it always as nice as this for you . . . I know how you feel about me, Daph; but I guess that'll be enough, if you'll take a chance."

"Alan, would you understand the paradox if I said I love you? I mean that I do . . . and yet . . . I am not really in love with you."

"Perhaps."

Daphne nodded. "Someone in the past?" Alan asked.

"Someone who didn't want me," she said.

"I want you, any part of you." Daphne put her hand on his. "Knowing about . . . that there was . . . ?"

Alan paused, then said, "Well, there's a war on, honey. It may last three months, three years, or thirty. Let's skip the thirty? Suppose it's only three months, or three years? I envy what Jock's got . . . his home, wife, their sweet kids. I guess it's only human to want a little of it before you head towards the enemy."

"And I'd know that you and Alan were in a position where you'd always be taken care of."

Daphne thought if he said another word she'd burst into tears and throw herself into his arms. As it was, her voice was not steady when she said, "You've waited a long time, Alan . . . Will you wait a little longer?"

He took her in his arms, and laid his cheek against hers. He did not kiss her. He murmured, "I need you, Daphne."

Jock drove back with them to Washington in the morning, and they talked about the headlines, and sports, and the raising of young children. Alan had been left behind to spend the week with Kitty and Betty Pemberton, and it wasn't until Alan stood at her door that he said, "How long does it take you to make up your mind?"

"A month?"

"How about the Fourth? Not that I expect you to remember, but it was last Fourth of July that I first proposed to you."

"I remember," Daphne declared, and walked into her apartment remembering the plate of food she'd left in the cool cellar for Steve before she went to the picnic that day a year ago.

There was a pile of mail on her desk and she flicked through it rapidly, her heart skipping a beat when she saw a long envelope with her name addressed on a typewriter, and a North Wintridge postmark in the corner.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

When she'd come to Washington, Daphne made it clear that she came for professional reasons, that being Alan was a pleasure, but that her feelings hadn't changed. Alan had met with his usual aplomb, assuring her that he was a healthy sign that he was a healthy sign that he was a healthy sign.

Daphne gave up then. If Alan was content to escort her about, and wear his attentions on her, there was no objection. She needed Alan. He was necessary to her new way of living. She went to theatres, restaurants and cocktail parties and to dinner parties and state affairs. She was popular and her influence was many. She dressed smartly, played the sound bridge, danced and gave an occasional small luncheon.

Corinne had arranged to send her a hundred a month, and told her that she was piling up profits in yet unpaid commissions.

She was doing extremely well for a girl who was working for no other reason than to forget a man who didn't want her. She was doing better well, too, at forgetting him. Daphne thought it was only occasionally that her heart leaped into her mouth when she saw a dark head above the Medical Corps insignia. She was a little proud that she, less than three months since she'd written her farewell note to Steve, she wasn't even looking for an answer.

Daphne got dressed finally, that Friday afternoon, in one of her black dresses and a cartwheel made her telephone calls. In the paint job, drank tea with the attaché's mother, had a glass of sherry at the congressman's house, ran into a cocktail party at the senator's, and got home late, and so tired, that she fell asleep while trying to answer a long-overdue letter to Buff, her most faithful correspondent.

Saturday morning Daphne woke, though still tired, and was all curled-up things and Juan's old clothes—when Alan arrived.

"No sports gear, please," she said. "Spare me activity. I want to find a cool corner and take a nap."

"Do anything you like, m'love. Juan's only asked a few people. It'll be unexciting, but comfortable. Like me."

"You are exciting," she smiled, "and you're comfortable, too." Alan enlarged upon the theme for some miles, and then broke off as the car entered a long drive leading to a huge white house with tall columns and spreading wings.

"This is it, Pemberton Hall. Dad gave it to Jane for a wedding present when she married Jack Pemberton. Like it?"

"Like it? It's magnificent!" The house stood on the crown of the hill, surrounded with rolling lawns of emerald velvet. Rhododendrons, azaleas and delphinium were massed in a riot of gorgeous color along the border of the drive, and tall, aged trees with lovely green lace leaves, shaded both house and sun-swept grounds.

Daphne fell immediately in love with it, and with the interior of the house with its air of elegance and spacious dignity, and with Jane and her ruddy-faced husband. And with Jane's fat little girls who took Juan off to their quarters. And with the cocker spaniels, and the luncheon served on the river-fronting terrace.

The delectable food, the sky above them, the sun sparkling on the swimming pool, the flowers—and Alan, golden brown, with his sun-bleached hair above the white of his uniform—all these merged into one delightful haze.

Later that afternoon, when Daphne, in bathing attire, sat on the edge of the pool, watching the children splashing in the water, she thought—as if it were a revelation: This is the kind of life I dreamed about.

It was hers for two days—or a lifetime, if she wanted it. "It's been the loveliest two days I've ever had," she told Alan on Sunday night when they were looking at the stars from the terrace.

"It's been quiet. A little riding, a little swimming, a little backgammon. Very simple. But you have enjoyed it?"

"Love it!" Daphne exclaimed, smiling a little as she thought how she'd been enjoying "simplicity" which was the very essence of elegance.

"Too bad you have to go back tomorrow."

"Yes." "Juan's been having a picnic. Kit and Bets have been teaching him to ride the pony. I think we've got a triangle there. Of course he's a little too young to make a choice between the girls, but—"

"Juan thinks he's gone to heaven," she said dreamily.

"How about you?" "It is heavenly," she said truthfully. "I feel a little bit that way myself."

Alan was mixing a drink for himself, and he spoke without turning. "Room enough for me in this heaven?"

"Why, you're part of it, Alan!" He brought a drink to her and proposed a toast: "To Pemberton Hall!"

"You mean 'Pemberton' Hall, don't you?" "No," he said, shaking his head. "I was thinking of our house. Of course we could call it anything you like. Dew Drop Inn, if you wish."

Daphne sipped her drink. "Don't tempt me," she said lightly. "It could be as much like this as you wanted it. We'd have a pool, of course, and a pony for Juan and—our kids."

She could see his eyes in the moonlight, serious, intent upon her.

Many Never Suspect Cause Of Backaches

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

but she couldn't speak. A pony for Juan and "our kids."

Alan was speaking again: "Nobody knows what we'll have when the war is over, but I think I could support us for life in this style, darling."

"I want it, Alan," she said. "I want this kind of a life. I like other kinds of life, too. I like my little house in New England, and the simple life I led there. I don't know if I'll ever go back to it. Perhaps the reason I like this so much is because it's so different from—"

from what I left and I... I can't be sure."

"Let me be sure for you?" "How could you, Alan?" "To make it always as nice as this for you. I know how you feel about me, Daphne, but I guess that'll be enough, if you'll take a chance."

"Alan, would you understand the paradox if I said I love you? I mean that I do... and yet... I am not really in love with you."

"Perhaps." Daphne nodded. "Someone in the past?" Alan asked.

"Someone who didn't want me," she said.

"I want you, any part of you." Daphne put her hand on his. "Knowing about... that there was—"

Alan paused, then said, "Well, there's a war on, honey. It may last three months, three years, or thirty. Let's skip the thirty? Suppose it's only three months, or three years? I envy what Jack's got—his home, wife, their sweet kids. I guess it's only human to want a little of it before you head towards the enemy."

"And I'd know that you and Juan were in a position where you'd always be taken care of."

Daphne thought if he said another word she'd burst into tears and throw herself into his arms. As it was, her voice was not steady when she said, "You've waited a long time, Alan... Will you wait a little longer?"

He took her in his arms, and laid his cheek against hers. He did not kiss her. He murmured, "I need you, Daphne."

Jack drove back with them to Washington in the morning, and they talked about the headlines, and sports, and the raising of young children. Juan had been left behind to spend the week with Kitty and Betty Pemberton, and it wasn't until Alan stood at her door that he said, "How long does it take you to make up your mind?"

"A month?" "How about the Fourth? Not that I expect you to remember, but it was last Fourth of July that I first proposed to you."

"I remember," Daphne declared, and walked into her apartment re-joining the plate of food she'd left in the cool cellar for Steve before she went to the picnic that day a year ago.

There was a pile of mail on her desk and she flicked through it rapidly, her heart skipping a beat when she saw a long envelope with her name addressed on a typewriter, and a North Winthrop postmark in the corner.

There's going to be some deluxe basketball played in Salem High school's gym Friday night—that's for sure!

When the Salem Quakers and the East Liverpool Potters come together in any athletic encounter the fur always flies, and it's slated to fly tomorrow with more than the usual fury.

Salem, victorious in six of seven games and averaging 46 points per try, will meet a potent Potter crew, victorious in five of six games and averaging 56 points per try.

The Quakers have the height, experience and defensive edge, besides having the additional advantage—always important—of playing on the home floor and before home fans.

To date East Liverpool has the following record: Defeated Ex-Highs, 49-21; Midland, 55-34; Alliance, 77-24; Bellaire, 48-31; Steuvenville Central, 51-38; and was beaten by Weirton, W. Va., 55-54.

Salem's record looks like this: Won over Ravenna, 46-28; Minerva, 55-21; Lisbon, 38-20; Canton, 55-21; Akron, 54-25; Alliance, 37-28; and lost to Columbiana, 40-39.

The offensive averages give East Liverpool a 10 point advantage, while Salem's opponents have averaged 29 points to 36 points per game for the Potter's opposition.

From the experience angle, Salem with six veterans available, is far ahead of the East Liverpool outfit. Coach Don Ogden has only Dick Horton, substitute center last year and starter this season, back from the club that handled Salem two plumbings, 43-37, 52-48, last year.

A Salem disadvantage again this week will be chalked up to injuries. Both Starter Ray Kelly and Substitute Don Firth are out of uniform: Kelly because of a knee injury and Firth because of ankle damage.

To replace Kelly in the starting group, Miller will use dependable Norm Smith and should Smith tire—Bill Stoudt, another veteran, will be in. Walt Brian, Francis Lanney, Jim Appedisian and Mutt Schaeffer, center, guards and forward, respectively, will round out the starting crew.

Both teams will have individual problems on their hands. Salem is faced with the exasperating task of stopping the point-obtaining talents of, first: Bob Mullen, who is averaging 17 points-per-game; and second: Jim Harris, who is averaging 10.

The problem also shifts when one man is bottled, practically the same as the problem shifts on Salem's outfit when one spot is stopped. For instance, in the Steuvenville game on Tuesday, Mullen and Harris were held to their lowest totals of the year, but another sharpshooter, Jim Kelly, cropped up and pushed in 20 points.

East Liverpool will have to muzzle the two tossing arms of Walt Brian at center, Brian, who has scored 88 points in seven games is averaging better than 12 per try. Jimmie Appedisian, who tosses them from the fast break like a man sowing wheat, has chucked through 77 points in six games for a better than 12 point average.

Also troublesome are Francis Lanney and Mutt Schaeffer, with seven and six point averages. Ray Kelly, the only other regular seven-pointer, will be missed offensively.

The East Liverpool-Salem games and rivalry are new to both coaches, and the angle of new coaches is new to both sets of fans. Salem and the Potters have been battling for a long time and under Coach Herb Brown and Coach Bill Laughlin, former mentors at the two schools, the tactics and style were practically stabilized.

Now, however, the rivalry and the rabid-fan interest in all that remains. Both teams are manipulating under new systems, both unknown to the other and both in a quandry as to the outcome of the clash.

East Liverpool evidently has a powerful offense and not too much defense. Salem has a good portion of both, coupled with a host of veteran material—an all-important factor in a hot and heavy game like this one promises to be.

Consequently, after weighing all considerations, most fans and experts are giving the locals a slight edge in the game, but most agree that the edge is far from convincing. A few points one way or the other is almost certain to be the margin.

The reserve contest is slated to start at 7:30 Friday night and the varsity game will get under way about 8:45. Irwin Shoppell of Canton and Al Sebastian of Youngstown will be the officials.

ABRUPT ENDING OF PRO GRID MEETING PUTS BASEBALL UP

Experts Now Look to Other Sport for Lead On the Future of Both

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO, Jan. 11 — The abrupt adjournment of the National Football league's annual meeting has focused the dimming professional sports' spotlight on baseball.

Notwithstanding George Marshall, unpredictable owner of the Washington Redskins who walked out on the pro loop's final session yesterday, the football moguls adopted a wait-and-see policy which the major league baseball leagues can't match.

The baseball season begins some six months ahead of the football season, and baseball owners have little time to mull over the proposed national work draft and 4-F crackdown before they meet in New York Feb. 3.

No official explanation for the sudden adjournment of a session scheduled to last through Saturday was given by the football league representatives. But they agreed to assemble again in New York the first week of April for their annual player draft and schedule making.

It was apparent that the delegates realized they had picked a most inopportune time to hold the first draft meeting ever scheduled in January. Previously it was held in April. This year's meeting date had been scheduled long before War Mobilizer Byrnes put the finger on 4-F athletes and President Roosevelt recommended a national work draft.

Says Will Sign 'Em Up

One of the league coaches who asked anonymity, probably expressed the attitude of all, save Marshall, in this way:

"It's a wise move. We are just like the rest of the public — don't know a think about what part Uncle Sam wants us to play in helping to win the war. Until the government's wishes and desires are announced, I plan to sign up every able-bodied player I can find in the best interest of my team and professional football's future."

"You can always quit and if Washington tells us to, we will." Marshall stomped out of an executive session and was not present when the adjournment vote was taken. He held it violated the league constitution, which calls for a unanimous vote before a meeting date can be changed.

Commissioner Elmer Layden asserted the rule was not violated inasmuch as the meeting was held as scheduled, and then adjourned. Only accomplishment by the delegation was a rule proposal session from which no unusual recommendations emerged. A suggestion to adopt a "sudden death" overtime to end the games was tabled.

QUAKER FROSH WIN OVER SEBRING, 28-20

Salem High's Freshman basketball quintet, coached by Frank J. Tarr, posted its second win in three games yesterday by downing a zone-defending Sebring High school freshman aggregation, 28-20.

Unable to score as frequently as they did in the first period, when 11 markers went through the cords, the Salem outfit led 14-12 at the half. The score was knotted, 14-14, in the third period but Salem pulled slowly away, scoring nine points to three for the opposition in the last frame.

Aubrey Cain, Carl Ciccozzi, Ray Mercer and Virgil Kelly looked good for Salem, all collecting at least two field goals.

Bee-Gees Win Over Denison and Akron Whips Case In Easy Tries

(By Associated Press)

Bowling Green and Akron cage teams, like old man river, keep rolling along.

The unbeaten Bee Gees notched victory No. 10 last night by whipping Denison, 69 to 45, while the Zippers, who also haven't come out on the short end of a score this season, downed Case, 56 to 36, for their eighth win, and the fourth against Ohio Conference competition.

Ohio Wesleyan edged Wooster, 49 to 45, and Otterbein, trampled Port Columbus, 64 to 37.

Two traveling Ohio service teams suffered setbacks. Patterson Field Air Tech were defeated by Lincoln, Neb. Army Air Field, 56 to 49, at Lincoln, and Lockbourne Army Air Base bowed to Blytheville, Ark. Army Air field, 57 to 33, at Blytheville.

Gets 21 Points

At Akron, Zipper Forward Fritz Nagy dumped in 21 points to boost his total for the year to 182. He got ten of them in the first five minutes of the second half, which opened with Akron leading Case only 28 to 21. Guards Ted Mann and Bill Kanda each got 12 points for the losers.

Bowling Green also had trouble in the first half, leading Denison only 27 to 22 at the intermission. Forward Wyndol Gray and Center Don Otten paced the Bee Gees with 15 points apiece, while scoring honors went to Denison's Forward Glenn Culp who caged 19.

Andy Vonovich marked 24 points to lead Otterbein in its easy triumph over the Port Columbus sailors. Otterbein led 29 to 13 at halftime. Wilbur Woods got 11 for Port Columbus.

High scorer last night was Forward James Schneider, Wooster Freshman, who rang up 29 points, taking honors from Bob Hamblet of Ohio Wesleyan, who accounted for 23. The Bishops led 26 to 17 at the half, but had to halt a Wooster rally to win.

New Suggestion For Grid Quarter Rule Considered

BY HAROLD HARRISON

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 11.—The football team that stalls away these last few seconds of a game seemed today to have become the No. 1 subject of the National Football Coaches association as they got into the serious part of their first general meeting since the start of the war.

A few Big Ten coaches have talked about having a game consist of 160 plays, 40 to each period, but still another suggestion came up today.

E. C. (Irish) Krieger of Columbus, secretary of the National Collegiate Athletic Association rules committee, and Charley Bachman, head coach at Michigan state college, had this to offer at a session of the coaches' rules committee:

"That the second and fourth periods be 13 minutes long each and that after that a certain number of plays—perhaps six—be allowed in each period. The first and third periods would continue to be the regular 15 minutes."

The meeting of the coaches' rules committee and a session of the National Collegiate Athletic association executive committee were the only items on the program today. The coaches can only recommend to the NCAA what rules changes they think should be made.

Otherwise, the first day's gathering, limited to about a score of coaches, was little more than rumor, tops, among those were whether W. A. (Bill) Alexander is going to retire as head football coach at Georgia Tech and whether Carroll Widdoes, who directed Ohio State to an unbeaten and untied

To date East Liverpool has the following record: Defeated Ex-High's, 40-21; Midland, 55-34; Alliance, 77-24; Bellaire, 48-31; Steubenville Central, 51-36 and was beaten by Weirton, W. Va., 58-54. Salem's record looks like this: Won over Ravenna, 46-26; Minerva, 55-21; Lisbon, 38-20; Canton Lehman, 61-47; Alum, 54-25; Alliance, 37-28 and lost to Columbiana, 40-39.

The offensive averages give East Liverpool a 10 point advantage, while Salem's opponents have averaged 29 points to 36 points per game for the Potter's opposition.

From the defensive angle, Salem with six veterans available, is far ahead of the East Liverpool outfit. Coach Don Ogden has only Dick Horton, substitute center last year and starter this season, back from the club that handed Salem two slabbings, 43-37, 52-48, last year.

A Salem disadvantage again this week will be chalked up to injuries. Both Starter Ray Kelly and Substitute Don Firth are out of uniform: Kelly because of a knee injury and Firth because of ankle damage.

To replace Kelly in the starting group, Miller will use dependable Norm Smith and should Smith tire—Bill Stoudt, another veteran, will be in. Walt Brian, Francis Lanney, Jim Appelman and Mutt Schaeffer, center, guards and forward, respectively, will round out the starting crew.

For instance, in the Steubenville game on Tuesday, Mullen and Harris were held to their lowest totals of the year, but another sharpshooter, Jim Kelly, cropped up and pushed in 20 points.

East Liverpool will have to mangle the two towering arms of Walt Brian at center. Brian, who has scored 38 points in seven games is averaging better than 12 per try. Jimmie Appelman, who loses them from the fast break like a man sowing wheat, has chucked through 77 points in six games for a better than 13 point average.

Also troublesome are Francis Lanney and Mutt Schaeffer, with seven and six point averages. Ray Kelly, the only other regular seven-pointer, will be missed offensively.

The East Liverpool-Salem games and rivalry are new to both coaches and the angle of new coaches is new to both sets of fans. ABRUPT ENDING OF PRO GRID MEETING PUTS BASEBALL UP

Experts Now Look to Other Sport for Lead On the Future of Both

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—The abrupt adjournment of the National Football League's annual meeting has focused the dimming professional sports' spotlight on baseball.

Notwithstanding George Marshall, unpredictable owner of the Washington Redskins who walked out on the pro loop's final session yesterday, the football moguls adopted a wait-and-see policy which the major league baseball leagues can't match.

The baseball season begins some six months ahead of the football season, and baseball owners have little time to mull over the proposed national work draft and F crackdown before they meet in New York Feb. 3.

No official explanation for the sudden adjournment of a session scheduled to last through Saturday was given by the football league representatives. But they agreed to assemble again in New York the first week of April for their annual player draft and schedule making.

It was apparent that the delegates realized they had picked a most inopportune time to hold the first draft meeting ever scheduled in January. Previously it was held in April. This year's meeting date had been scheduled long before War Mobilizer Byrnes put the finger on 4-F athletes and President Roosevelt recommended a national work draft.

Says Will Sign 'Em Up

One of the league coaches who asked anonymity, probably expressed the attitude of all, save Marshall, in this way:

"It's a wise move. We are just like the rest of the public—don't know a thing about what part Uncle Sam wants us to play in helping to win the war. Until the government's wishes and desires are announced, I plan to sign up every able-bodied player I can find in the best interest of my team and professional football's future."

"You can always quit and if Washington tells us to, we will," Marshall stomped out of an executive session and was not present when the adjournment vote was taken. He held it violated the league constitution, which calls for a unanimous vote before a meeting date can be changed.

Commissioner Elmer Layden asserted the rule was not violated inasmuch as the meeting was held as scheduled, and then adjourned. Only accomplishment by the delegation was a rule proposal session from which no unusual recommendations emerged. A suggestion to adopt a "sudden death" overtime to end the games was tabled.

Bowling Green also had trouble in the first half, leading Denison only 27 to 22 at the intermission. Forward Wyndol Gray and Center Don Otten paced the Bee Gees with 15 points apiece, while scoring honors went to Denison's Forward Glenn Culp who caged 19.

Andy Vonovich marked 24 points to lead Otterbein in its easy triumph over the Port Columbus sailors. Otterbein led 29 to 18 at halftime. Wilbur Woods got 11 for Port Columbus.

High scorer last night was Forward James Schneider. Wooster Freshman, who rank up 29 points, taking honors from Bob Hamblet of Ohio Wesleyan, who accounted for 23. The Bishops led 26 to 17 at the half, but had to halt a Wooster rally to win.

That the second and fourth periods be 13 minutes long each and that after that a certain number of plays—perhaps six—be allowed in each period. The first and third periods would continue to be the regular 15 minutes.

Can Suggest

The meeting of the coaches' rules committee and a session of the National Collegiate Athletic association executive committee were the only items on the program today. The coaches can only recommend to the NCAA what rules changes they think should be made.

Otherwise, the first day's gathering, limited to about a score of coaches, was little more than rumor. Tops among those were whether W. A. (Bill) Alexander is going to retire as head football coach at Georgia Tech and whether Carroll Widdoes, who directed Ohio State to an unbeaten and untied

Field Marshal Von Kluge's German 7th army was partly destroyed in the Falaise massacre in Normandy. Snow and mist gave the Nazis cover.

The enemy claimed to have "liberated" several towns in Alsace-Lorraine, including Rimpling. The communiqué said encircled troops had been annihilated south of Erstein, 10 miles below Strasbourg, and that 300 were captured.)

The War Today

By DeWitt MacKenzie

We must expect interludes of German counter-attacks, and there may be temporary Allied upsets.

However, the great point is that Rundstedt is losing heavily in men and material, for the struggle in the bulge is a battle of annihilation. By the time he reaches his Slegfried defenses his army will need a blood-transfusion.

The Nazi marshal's chief achievement is in delaying the Allied winter offensive perhaps three months or so. Whether this will represent any real gain remains to be seen, for he may arrive back at the Rhine so badly shot to pieces his further powers of resistance will be weak. Presumably that possibility is what Gen. Bradley has in mind. Should this eventuate, the time spent in the battle of the bulge wouldn't have lengthened the war but would in fact have shortened it. Rundstedt had to be smashed sometime, and it's perhaps just as well to do it in the bulge as on the Cologne plain where Eisenhower had planned to force a show-down.

How soon will the Allies be able to conclude the battle of the bulge and mount an all-out offensive to end all offensives? It strikes me that we shall be over optimistic if we look for preliminaries of the big show short of the good weather of April, if indeed they can come that soon.

A major offensive must be preceded by a tremendous amount of spare work by the Air Forces, especially to disrupt communication and supply centers which have been restored during the diversion of the offensive into Belgium. At present the fighter-bombers, which carry out the short-range close work calling for visual bombing (as opposed to bombing by instrument), are grounded by foul weather most of the time. That weather may be expected to continue through March. Still, if Rundstedt is gravely weakened by his present great effort, when the Allied offensive does start to roll, it will roll.
